November 2016

Since March 1, 1915, your UC Cooperative Extension team here in Glenn County has been hard at work, identifying the best science-based solutions to our most pressing local issues. We are your partners, addressing problems that impact us all: pest and disease infestations, comprehensive youth education, agriculture production trials, complex environmental regulations, home landscaping challenges, and so much more.

Local UC Cooperative Extension advisors are:

- ◆ Identifying regionally-adapted orchard varieties through rootstock and variety trials
- ◆ Troubleshooting production and irrigation problems
- ◆ Evaluating dairy herd health and animal welfare practices
- ◆ Addressing water and air quality concerns
- ◆ Identifying and managing invasive pests and diseases

Our 4-H Youth Development and Master Gardener programs:

- ◆ Provide hands-on educational opportunities for more than 600 youth in our county
- ◆ Offer 70 different educational learning projects from avian to woodworking, farm machinery to graphic design, healthy living to community service and so much more, all led by 150 adult volunteers
- ◆ Log thousands of hours of community service each year
- ◆ Conduct a weekly plant clinic to answer gardening and home orchard questions
- ◆ Offer workshops that address home landscaping challenges

Individuals like you make all the difference. Your support of our community's Cooperative Extension through your gifts, volunteering and advocacy provides the resources we need to help identify and address the challenges we all face. Your contributions are used for staff, technical support, equipment, supplies and volunteer leader training when other sources of funding are not available.

Your 100% tax-deductible donation is helping to make our community better. Right here, right now!

Thank you for your generosity and partnership,

Betsy Karle
 County Director, Glenn County
