The following is correspondence from Kevin McKinney to the Glenn County 4-H Council.

THE FOUR H'S

What are the four H's in 4-H? They are Head, Heart, Hands, and Health, and I have been making a pledge to them every month during my 13 years in 4-H. As a younger member of 4-H, I never fully understood what the complete meaning behind the four H's was. However, two years ago, I was given the honor of being selected as Glenn County's All-Star, which is the highest county rank in 4-H. It was during this time, that I would grow to understand what the four H's meant, and how much work was behind them.

From the first day I became an All-Star, I felt myself grow intellectually. In fact, in order to even be selected as an All-Star, I had to undergo an interview. Sitting in my room, I looked over a list of possible questions the selection committee might ask me; I wanted everything to go perfectly. By the time I was sitting in front of the committee, I knew my response before they would ask me the question. Furthermore, once being selected as an All-Star, I was told I had to give a speech in front of every 4-H club within the county. This would have been no problem for me except that public speaking is my biggest bugaboo. Like before, I practiced and practiced. When it came time for my speech, my knees shook and my voice quavered. However, after giving that same speech in front of every club, I got better; now I'm able to stand up in front of a group and voice my thoughts, whether it is planned or impromptu. By the end of the year, I noticed something had changed in me. I had grown both intellectually and socially.

Another area of me that grew that year was my "Heart." Being an All-Star, I was required to be a counselor at 4-H Summer Camp. Having not been to camp since I was eight, I had no idea what to expect, especially since I was going back as a counselor. At camp, I was always busy with the daily events. One day, though, I noticed a camper sitting by himself. When I sat to talk to him, he immediately let me know of his unpopularity amongst other campers. My heart leapt out to him, and for the rest of camp, I made it my goal to help him fit in. After camp, I wanted to continue this goal with those in my community who aren't often noticed by our society. I joined Spirits, which is a group dedicated to help "challenged" individuals in my community. I helped to teach them basketball, bowling, bingo, and a lot more. Every time I saw them smile, I could feel my "Heart" growing.

Though I am used to working with my "Hands," I still found that I somehow grew in 4-H. Having a truck, I found others always had something for me to pick up to help set-up for 4-H events. Whether it was tables, chairs, speakers, or food, I continually had something in my truck. I discovered that using my "Hands" in 4-H not only helped others, but it also helped myself. I became a person who was more independent, more outgoing, and more a man of action; I learned that without action, nothing, would ever get done. This is how my "Hands" grew as an All-Star.

Finally, because of my "Head," "Heart," and "Hands," I also found that my "Health" grew. I didn't grow physically but rather intellectually, socially, and emotionally. In addition, between 4-H, school, friends, and my own desires, I found out how to balance all the different parts of my life. By being a role model for other members, my confidence grew. Also, as my "Health" increased, other people's "Health" also grew. The people I talked to, helped, or cared for grew in some aspect of their lives. That is what 4-H is all about, helping others and yourself at the same time.

When my parents enrolled me into 4-H 13 years ago, it was meant for me to have fun. Without 4-H, I not only would have missed out on a lot of fun, but I wouldn't be the person I am today. 4-H has made me more vocal, more outgoing, more aware, more compassionate, and more beneficial to others and myself. That is what 4-H has done for me; it has given me more.
